Financing Bill Veto Possible

By ANDREW A. YEMMA
UPI Capitol Reporter

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The time has come, the senator said, to talk of many things. Of school finance and compromise, of taxes and a possible veto by Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

"It's becoming obvious more and more that we have two programs on a collision course," Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, said Thursday following a meeting of a Senate subcommittee studying two school financing proposals.

"There is a time honored, traditional political process that is about to be invoked and that is compromise," Mauzy said.

Mauzy is the sponsor of one of the proposals, the one backed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe. The sponsor of the other bill, the one supported by the Texas State Teachers Association, is Sen. A.M. Aiken, D-Paris.

The Mauzy plan costs $544 million. The Aiken proposal $707 million. But the Mauzy bill will cost $2 billion during the second two years of its inception while the Aiken plan will cost $1.7 billion during that same period.

The subcommittee asked its staff to draft a compromise of the two bills, but said the compromise will have to have a lower price tag than either Mauzy's or Aiken's bill. The compromise must not cost more than $500 million, the amount the comptroller said is available for school finance reform, or else Briscoe said he will veto it.

Briscoe has vowed to veto any legislation requiring a tax increase and he repeated that vow again Thursday during a meeting with school officials from Dallas, Austin, Corpus Christi and El Paso. "We asked him if he was specifically tied to a new taxes legislature," Dallas school superintendent Dr. Nolan Estes said. "His answer was unequivocally yes."

Mauzy said the compromise will contain basic elements to reform school financing including mandatory collection of property taxes throughout the state at a fair market value of the property.

"I think personally the courts are going to force us to do this if we don't," Mauzy said.

The compromise will be presented to the Senate Education Committee.

Storms Lash State

Hail, Floods, Tornadoes Seen

By United Press International

Severe thunderstorms lashed south Texas Thursday night with hail, high winds and flash flooding. A San Antonio fireman drowned trying to rescue a boy from a rain swollen creek.

Numerous tornadoes and funnel clouds were reported in Wilson, Karnes and Bexar counties but there were no reports of any deaths or serious injuries from the high winds. A funnel cloud was also seen in Harris County but it apparently did not touch down.

The San Antonio Fire Department said 100 persons

had to be helped from their homes or from cars stranded by high water Thursday night, but the flood waters receded today.

Lt. Willie Ojeda, 44, a 15-year veteran of the fire department, drowned trying to help a boy riding an inner tube in a flooded creek near Ft. Sam Houston.

"We're still looking for the boy," assistant fire chief Jimmy Saldana said.

Saldana said Ojeda's body was recovered. The National Weather Service said the thunderstorms produced baseball sized hail at Dewees 40 miles south of San Antonio. Hail ranging from pea to golfball size pelted much of the southern part of the state. During one of the thunderstorms a wind gust of 61 miles per hour was recorded in San Antonio.

The NWS said continued thunderstorm activity was expected for much of the state today.

The heaviest activity Thursday was in the southern part of the state.

The National Weather Service said rains in excess of two inches an hour fell in most of south central Texas.

High winds peeled the top off a trailer house in Floresville, damaged another trailer in Falls City and damaged the front of a store in Karnes County.

Tornadoes were reported west of Falls City, near Kelly Air Force Base, south of Yorktown and northwest of Goliad, but none did any damage.

Mauzy said the compromise will contain basic elements to reform school financing including mandatory collection of property taxes throughout the state at a fair market value of the property.

"I think personally the courts are going to force us to do this if we don't," Mauzy said.

The compromise will be presented to the Senate Education Committee.

Bribery Lessons Given

By LEONARD CURRY
UPI Business Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department counseled U.S. aerospace and electronic industries on bribery methods for making sales in the Middle East, a government document revealed today.

The Defense paper said Middle East agents were paid to "influence" their governments to buy goods from American and European countries.

"The term 'influence' is used here rather loosely," the Defense paper said. "To be more specific, it can range from normal friendships or family ties between local agent and procuring officer to the payment of substantial sums of money to individuals in high government positions with somewhat lesser amounts paid to lower echelon government officials."

The document was included in a July 5, 1974, letter sent to the Aerospace Industries Association, the Electronic Industry Association and the National Security Industry Association. It was signed by Josef K. Hoenig, assistant sales negotiations director of the Defense Security Assistance Agency.

Hoenig could not be reached for comment. A Defense Department spokesman could give no details on the origin of the document, but said he believed it was originally made in a speech to an industry group.

Jean Coffiaux, an EIA official who deals in export sales, said he did not recall receiving the Hoenig letter. Coffiaux said it was customary for the association to relay such information to members that might be affected.

The Hoenig letter was contained in documents that Northrop Corp., a Los Angeles based aerospace corporation, filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission. Northrop used the letter as evidence that "unusual payments" to agents in the Middle East were not uncommon.

Northrop has pleaded guilty to federal charges of using payments to foreign agents to disguise a $1.1 million slush fund from which corporate funds were diverted to make illegal campaign contributions to Democratic and Republican congressional and presidential candidates from 1961 to May 15, 1974.

Other companies charged with using corporate funds to create illegal slush funds have also said that the practice was customary. These companies include United Brands, Phillips Petroleum and Gulf Oil.

Special committees appointed by Phillips and Gulf management are now preparing reports on the slush funds. The Northrop account was the first completed.

Numerous tornadoes and funnel clouds were reported in Wilson, Karnes and Bexar counties but there were no reports of any deaths or serious injuries from the high winds. A funnel cloud was also seen in Harris County but it apparently did not touch down.

The San Antonio Fire Department said 100 persons

had to be helped from their homes or from cars stranded by high water Thursday night, but the flood waters receded today.

Lt. Willie Ojeda, 44, a 15-year veteran of the fire department, drowned trying to help a boy riding an inner tube in a flooded creek near Ft. Sam Houston.

...To Airports

Richardson has decided to carry on with plans to enlarge Shiloh Airport as a municipal facility and Councilman Bob Ellis says he will continue to fight such a project. Richardson will submit its proposal Wednesday to the North Central Texas Council of Governments (NCTCOG) Executive Committee and Plano representatives are expected to be present. Thus far Plano has succeeded in thwarting the Richardson proposal in two Government Applications Review Committee sessions, but the executive committee makes all final decisions for NCTCOG. Hill Makes Ruling

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — School districts in Texas can not use local maintenance funds to purchase personal injury or uninsured motorist insurance coverage, Attorney General John Hill ruled Thursday.

Stamp Bill Passes

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Senate voted 21-0 Thursday to make it a criminal offense to illegally possess food stamps. The bill by Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, places felony penalties subject to two to 10 years in prison for a person illegally in possession of more than $100 worth of stamps. Less than $100 in stamps carries a misdemeanor penalty. The bill now goes to the House.

Clayton to be Honored

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — House members voted unanimously Thursday to honor Speaker Bill Clayton in ceremonies May 26. Clayton said the traditional "Speaker's Day" activities will not include lavish gifts from members, employees and lobbyists that have been typical on such observances in the past.

He suggested rather than giving him gifts, the other legislators and employees make contributions either to Cal Farley's Boys' Ranch in Boys Ranch, Tex., or Girlstown, U.S.A., at Whiteface, Tex.

Longview Firm Burns

LONGVIEW, Tex. (UPI) — The storage portion of the Longview Home Center, a large building with lumber, paint and light fixtures, caught fire Wednesday and burned for eight hours, the fire department said. Authorities said damage estimates from the blaze were not available.

Bowles Thinks Action Unlikely

Major changes in the power of various financial institutions probably won't be voted by Congress in 1975.

Lloyd S. Bowles, president of the United States League of Savings Assn., said today.

Speaking before the meeting of the Texas Society of Certified Public

Accountants, Bowles said that final congressional action appears unlikely in 1975 on the Administration's

Financial Institutions Act

which has been submitted to Congress.

Bowles said that while there is some chance the

Senate may act on the FIA

bill this year, action on the bill apparently will be deferred at least until next year by the House of Representatives.

He noted that Chairman

Reuss of the House Banking

Committee and Chairman St.

Germain of the House

Subcommittee on Financial Institutions have announced their intention to study

financial institution performance and federal banking regulations. This comprehensive project is expected to last for a year or more.

"Its particular importance for us is that it, once again, will review the relationship between commercial banks and thrift institutions," said

Bowles.

Bowles, board chairman of Dallas Federal Savings and Loan Assn., said that it is no secret that some leaders in the congressional banking committees have never been pleased the proposed

Financial Institutions Act

developed out of a

Presidential Commission on which there was no

congressional representation.

"The announcement by

Chairman Reuss and Representative St. Germain

makes it clear that, so far as the House Banking Committee is concerned, this shortcoming will be remedied in the FINE study.

"Thus, it's also likely that any major congressional moves in the direction of financial institution structure will now await the results of the FINE study and that any fundamental financial institution legislation before late 1976 is unlikely."

'States Can Protect Land'

Collins Explains Strip Mining Bill Opposition

Congressman Jim Collins has announced his reasons for voting against the Surface Mining and Reclamation Act, popularly referred to as the Strip Mining Bill.

"While there is a need to protect our land, such a need is being met more than adequately by the states today," Collins stated. "Furthermore, if the focus of this legislation is to reclaim land, then let us vote more funds for the Soil Conservation Service, which has already reclaimed 1.3 million acres of surface mined lands, instead of adding another layer to the bureaucracy."

"We have a great system in Texas," the Congressman continued. "Our strip mines produce vast amounts of much-needed coal and our operators have instituted excellent reclamation projects. For example, Texas Power & Light has a large lignite mining operation in Central Texas. It has been most successful and the reclaimed land is both beautiful and productive."

The Third District Congressman based his opposition to the bill on several arguments:

1) Acceptance of the bill will mean unemployment for 40,000-50,000 people. Because of excessively stringent regulations, many smaller mine operators will be forced to shut down. Compliance with the new federal regulations would be too costly to provide adequate business incentives.

2) Surface mined coal represents 40 percent of the current supply for coal burning facilities—namely electric power plants. All shortages resulting from a cutback in coal production will have to be made up for by importing more foreign oil. The cause-and-effect result is that since this oil is more expensive, electricity will also become more expensive, damaging not only the consumers, but also our balance of payments, which are now finally in the black.

3) The shortage of coal production will be at least 100 million tons in the first year after implementation of this bill. It will take 450 billion tons of imported oil to make up for this shortage at a cost of $11 billion. Add to this $850 million in consumer costs, including a 15 percent increase in consumer electric bills.

4) Importing additional oil flies in the face of our goal to cut back one million barrels per day. America's goal of self-sufficiency can never become a reality without increased production of our coal resources.

5) Ambiguous language in the bill regarding state standards on federal lands could mean litigation which would postpone the start of critically-needed new coal mines.

"It is wishful thinking to assume that our present energy crisis will disappear," Congressman Collins added. "This proposed federal legislation discriminates against energy concerns at a time when America's energy needs demand our foremost attention. I urged my colleagues to consider how they will explain the exorbitant electricity bills their constituents will have to pay after they themselves have voted to curtail the production of coal—the very resource that will be called upon for most electrical energy.

"The American people, in their role as consumers, will soon realize the disastrous consequences of imposing confusing, arbitrary, and unreasonably stringent federal controls on a vital segment of this nation's free enterprise system," Collins concluded.

For the second consecutive summer, the Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a "Yard of the Week" to emphasize their annual beautification of Plano project. The first selection of this year has been made and is the home of Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Martin, 1800 Greenway. The Martins will receive a potted plant, courtesy of Donley's Flowers. Cutting Technique Preserves Blooms

Flowers that are properly cared for when freshly cut will make longer lasting, attractive arrangements, says Everett Janne, landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

He recommends the following procedures:

"Always use a sharp knife or shears to cut the flower stem," says the Texas A&M University System specialist. "A dull cut will crush the stem and plug up the plant tissue. This keeps the stem from carrying water."

Janne stresses using a clean container for the flowers. Used containers should be thoroughly cleaned with a household bleach solution to get rid of any bacteria.

"After the flowers have been cut, put them in warm water and make sure that several inches of the stem is below water," points out the horticulturist.

Remove any leaves that are covered by water.

Then cover the flowers with a plastic film to prevent moisture loss and put them in a refrigerator or cool room for four to six hours.

The flowers are now ready to be put in an arrangement.

"Be sure the stems are covered by about one-fourth inch water and keep the arrangement out of hot or cold air drafts and away from direct sunlight," advises Janne.

Using chemical commercial preservatives in the water may help keep the flower in good condition. However, be sure to use these according to the manufacturer's recommendations, cautions the horticulturist.

When something is "smooth as glass," it's 300 times smoother than satin and 475 times smoother than silk.

Dusting Helps Plant Growth

Clean house plants are more attractive and perform better, according to a landscape horticulturist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Dust on leaf surfaces reduces the amount of light available to a plant," says Everett Janne. "Thus the plant may not get enough light for photosynthesis. Also, a dusty plant looks drab and uninteresting."

To remove dust, Janne suggests brushing the leaf surface with a soft camel hair brush or damp sponge and polishing with a soft cheese cloth about once a month. Heavily soiled leaves should be washed with a mild soap and warm water solution before polishing.

"Care should be used to prevent bruising or kinking

LAWNS and Gardens

the leaf surface while cleaning it," cautions the Texas A&M University System specialist. "You can avoid bruising a leaf by placing one hand on the underside of the leaf as you wipe the surface."

Several commercial leaf polishes are available, adds Janne. If you plan to use a commercial leaf polish, be sure to water plants several hours before treating or foliage burn may occur. Furthermore, don't use any kind of oil on plants.

For plants with hairy leaves, Janne suggests syringing the leaf surface with warm water. "Don't use water that is colder than the room temperature where the plants are located as this can cause leaf spotting."

Combination May Make More Work

Using a combination fertilizer and weed killer on your lawn can create more work than it saves, says James R. Risinger, Collin County Agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Applying a fertilizer-herbicide mixture to the lawn can endanger desirable plants such as trees, shrubs and vines in the area," Risinger stated. "Many trees such as oak, mulberry and sycamore are highly susceptible to weed killers."

There is always danger of applying too much herbicide. While an overdose of fertilizer is not necessarily harmful, too much herbicide can ruin vegetation.

Another drawback of using a combination fertilizerherbicide is that the most effective time to apply fertilizer is not always the most effective time to apply herbicide.

"Each type of herbicide must be used at a certain rate and time to be effective," Risinger pointed out.

There is also the chance that a leftover mixture of fertilizer and herbicide may be mistaken for fertilizer and used for that purpose. This can do irreparable damage to the landscape.

"By mowing your yard regularly and fertilizing, watering and providing good drainage, weeds will be less of a problem and you probably will not have to use a herbicide," Risinger explained. "But if you do decide to use a combination fertilizer and herbicide, be sure to read all the precautions on the label."

primarily for their oil.

"If all goes well, this will make Texas the largest producer of commercial sunflowers in the country," said Agriculture Commissioner John C. White. "We planted such a large acreage this year, we had to go to Europe for some of our seed. There wasn't enough available in the United States."

Though Texas has grown a sunflower crop in the past, acreage has been small. But tumbling cotton prices and good sunflower contract incentives put numerous farmers in the business of raising "flower."

One company contracted early for around 95 percent of the seed at 12 to 15 cents a pound. The company plans to use sunflower oil in its chip-making process.

Lubbock and Amarillo area growers planted 200,000 acres, which are expected to be harvested in July and August. Smaller acreage is growing in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, Coastal Bend, Central Texas and the Trans-Pecos area.

One advantage to the crop is that it can be planted early and will germinate in soil conditions of 55-60 degrees. A short-season, frost-tolerant crop, it requires only 100-110 days from planting to maturity.

Demand for edible vegetable oils here and abroad has raised sunflower prices, and new hybrids have boosted yields from 20 to 25 percent. These developments have been further incentives for farmers to diversify.

The major insect threats to the crop are the carrot beetle and sunflower moth. Pesticides have been developed to fight the beetle, but none have proved effective against severe damage. Researchers have had better luck against the sunflower moth.

Many Types

Screen for Privacy

Do you feel a lack of privacy in your backyard, especially in the summer when outdoor activities increase? If so, a number of solutions are available.

Dr. William Welch, a landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says there are several types of privacy screens suitable for backyards.

"It's important that the screen you choose blends in with the overall design of your landscape," emphasizes the Texas A&M University system specialist.

"A fence of pine, redwood or cedar makes a good screen and provides privacy as soon as it is completed. Brick, stone or concrete blocks may also be used. A fence should be sturdy and attractive and blend into the scenery."

The main disadvantage of building a fence is the high cost of construction.

"Plant screens," says Welch, "Not only provide privacy but also help reduce noise and air pollution."

Although a plant screen takes longer to provide privacy, it is generally much cheaper than a fence and does not require much maintenance, points out the horticulturist.

He offers a few pointers for putting in a plant screen. "Provide plenty of room for plants to grow and be sure they are suited to the area. Consider the soil type, drainage and the amount of sun available to the plants.

"Plant a lot of one type of plant rather than many different kinds of plants in one area."

"A combination frame and vine screen makes a good privacy block.

"Vines growing on a wooden frame covered with non-climbable welded wire make a colorful screen and require little space."

Welch suggests vines such as English Ivy or Carolina jasmine for attractive plant screens the year round.

And Be Sure

Use A Checklist

BY NEIL SPERRY
Area Horticulturist

May is a busy month for gardeners in the Plano area, and to help you keep track of the things which need to be done during the month, here's a gardening checklist:

Plant

Plant any container-grown nursery stock. Balled-and-burlapped stock without excessive root growth out of the balls can also be planted.

Bermuda grass seed or sod or St. Augustine sod can be planted anytime now.

Repot house plants and put in shaded spots out-of-doors for the summer. Use hanging baskets as additional accents on porches and patios.

Prune

Prune spring-flowering trees and shrubs now for best bloom next spring. Remove all storm- or pest-damaged growth as it occurs. Prune shrubs and vines back into shape. Their rampant spring growth should have slowed down by now.

Fertilize

Select a complete and balanced fertilizer for your most every need. Analyses such as 10-10-5 and 12-8-4 are both quite satisfactory. Apply to: vegetables monthly, flowering annuals monthly, trees and shrubs two to three times per year and lawns every eight to ten weeks.

Spray

1. Vegetables for aphids (malathion, diazinon), spider mites (kelthane), caterpillars (sevin) and sowbugs, slugs and snails (sevin). Always read labels carefully before treating vegetables.

2. Lawns (St. Augustine) will likely begin to show chinch bug damage during late May. Diazinon, trithion, and ethion are all cleared for the small black insect.

3. Webworms in shade and fruit trees respond to combinations of either malathion or diazinon along with a spreader-sticker surfactant.

4. Bagworms on junipers need prompt treatment with either malathion or diazinon at earliest signs.

5. Elm leaf beetles on Chinese elms need three to four week repeated sprayings with sevin.

Nurseries Urging Economy

It may seem strange that the very business people responsible for selling the fertilizer you should be using on your lawns and gardens are suggesting that it be used judiciously and with economy, but that is the word this season from the American Assn. of Nurserymen.

Increasing shortages of chemical fertilizers make it important that they be used with care, the association points out, and follow the instructions on the package or the advice of your knowledgeable garden center. Use all you need for the health of your plants and trees and lawn and garden; however, using more than directed won't result in improved appearance or health, they warn.

Research Center Sets Open House

With a theme of "Food-From the Soil to Your Table," the Annual Open House and Field Day for the Texas A&M University Research and Extension Center at Dallas has been set for May 21, according to a joint announcement from Uel R. Stockard, District Extension Agent, and Huey Whitehurst, Superintendent and Coordinator of Agricultural Programs.

Guided riding tours of the rural-urban Science Center will be conducted from 1 until 5:30 p.m.

"We have used every resource this year to pinpoint some of the answers to problems squarely facing all of us in the production, distribution and consumption of food," Stockard and Whitehurst emphasized.

"Everyone will find an interest—the farmer, rancher, businessman and housewife—including every resident of this North Texas area," they added.

Guests will hear Texas

Agricultural Experiment Station scientists explain research on a collection of hybrid bermudagrass, cool-season grasses, different pasture systems supporting cow-calf herds, small grain research with over 4,000 strains and over 15 other points of interest.

Center greenhouses will be open and filled with the newest of horticultural plants for home and landscape use. Walking tours will take guests through a home vegetable garden, fruit orchard, floral test garden and turf and horticultural exhibits.

The event will end with a barbecue dinner and at 6 p.m. "An American Food Policy" will be the subject of an address given by S.M. McAshan Jr., chairman of the board of Anderson Clayton and Co., as he explores possible key elements for a U.S. food policy.

Tickets to the dinner at $3 each may be obtained through James Risinger, Collin County Extension Agent, or writing: Field Day '76, P.O. Box 43, Renner, Tx. 75079.

Bluegrass

Admirably Responsive

Few lawngrasses make so stout a sod as does Kentucky bluegrass. Bluegrass spreads by underground stems call rhizomes, which intertwine into a network that can support unbelievable weight.

Vigorous, yes, but Kentucky bluegrass is nonetheless quite emperate in its habits, and admirably responsive. It does not invade bordering flowerbeds, as often do trailing grasses which spread by runners. It mows neatly with a sharp mower, not showing frayed leaf tips after clipping. Mowing need not be unduly frequent.

Blue grass is highly recuperative, reviving from underground parts even after being worn into the ground or scorched brown by drought. And it is a grass that remains attractive all seasons.

Polly's Pointers

Stained cookware dulls her pleasure

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — How does one remove brown stains from that popular white porcelain-like cookware? My teapot is badly discolored and scouring pads and abrasive cleaners do not help. My husband fastens narrow strips of self-adhesive foam weather stripping to his trouser hangers because the grooves in the hangers are not enough to hold his slacks. — MRS. L.R.H.

DEAR MRS. L.R.H. — I have an electric coffee pot made of the same porcelain-like cookware. When the inside becomes stained I fill it with very hot water, add a teaspoon or so of automatic dishwasher detergent, let it stand for about 15 minutes and then scrub the inside with the long-handled brush I use to remove food from dishes to go in the dishwasher. This cleans the brush and the inside of the pot is gleaming white. Rinse thoroughly with very hot water. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — One of my Pet Peeves is to have one of my favorite daily newspaper columns cut short as yours was twice last week. — DORA.

DEAR READERS — Needlework in all forms (knitting, crocheting, crewel embroidery, needlepoint, hooking, etc.) is enjoying a wave of popularity. More women are plying their needles of one sort or another and they have been joined by men and youngsters. Some say this great tranquilizer may be a rebellion against an almost mechanized society. No matter what prompts such handwork it can be a force toward family unity as one and all join together in a big project such as making a rug.

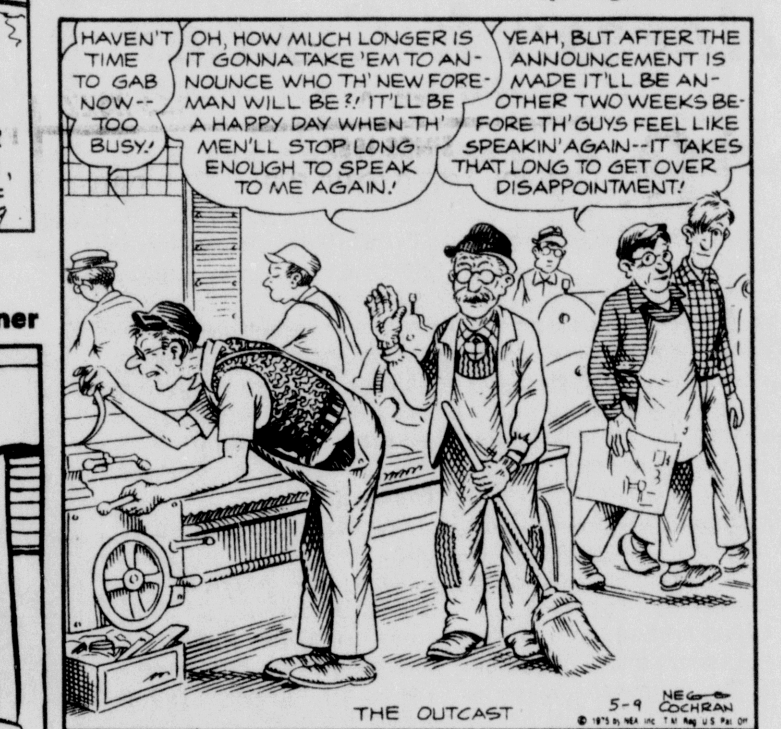

During recent years such work was considered to be woman's work and those few men who enjoyed it worked in seclusion. Now they are open about it and often give the women stiff competition. Why not? In the Middle Ages knitting was considered man's work, a real trade, but gradually they lost out to the distaff side. Reading that big (in more ways than one) former football star Roosevelt Grier does needlepoint and of a burly policeman knitting helped give them any needed assurance that their hobby was no longer considered "sissy" and they join their wives in dividing big tasks such as needlepointing seats for dining room chairs.

We know most everybody is doing handwork but how much of this is needlework that costs time and money we don't know. It does bring enjoyment to the worker and adds up to real decoration for the home. Before launching on any such project consider color, design and scale carefully.

Never buy and then work anything that does not have a definite place to go where it will be a contribution to the room's decorative scheme. Every room usually has a basic color or colors that stay around for a long time. Such colors may be determined by an Oriental rug, expensive plain carpeting, a glass or porcelain collection or be a favorite color. Accent colors may be changed at intervals and are not as permanent. Big handwork projects should be planned around the basics that will be around for years.

Company Reveals Strange Claims

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (UPI) — If you think you have problems, consider the following claims against a well-known insurance carrier headquartered here:

An automobile ran into a pickup truck on an interstate highway. Adjusters offered to rent a car for the truck driver until his vehicle could be fixed. But the truck driver said a car really wouldn't do him much good, explaining that his cargo was a six-foot gorilla.

A truck was promptly found for the driver — adjusters figuring it was easier than finding a motel room for a gorilla.

A policyholder from Kentucky was visiting a zoo with his wife. He parked his red Volkswagen and they went over to watch an elephant show. A few minutes later, one elephant wandered out of line and sat on the front of the VW. Zoo officials explained that the elephant had been trained to sit on a red stool and apparently thought that's what the car was. Officials issued a work order for repairs.

But one claim that was denied by State Farm Insurance Companies was filed by a lady who survived an automobile accident. Her pet canary didn't. She felt she was entitled to something for the loss of the bird. It was killed, she said, by germs from water that had splashed into her car. The claims adjuster was skeptical.

Country Music Goes to College

BY SYLVIA MORENO AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Let us now consider in its anthropological context the not considerable cultural contribution of Conway Twitty.

Country music is going to college next fall at the University of Texas.

Marcia Herndon, formerly a singer from the Tennessee hills and now a UT professor with a PhD in ethnomusicology, will teach the course. It'll be called "Country Music and Culture" and will be offered in the anthropology department.

"It's a personal voyage back for me," Ms. Herndon said. "My formal training, later concerts and conducting were with classical music."

"I rejected country music for years. I call myself an ethnomusicologist, but how can I if I don't recognize country music?"

Ms. Herndon plans to convey this sense of recognition to students, and at the same time relive some of her own past.

"I grew up in the hills of Tennessee and North Carolina and my granddad's family were performers," she said.

The last time she performed as a country singer was "as a teen-ager in the community and with the family."

Preparation for the course includes a trip back to Tennessee to record her family on tape. The tapes will be used to teach students about country music and the culture giving rise to it.

"We'll be discussing their cultural values, their general approach to life and what this music does for them," Ms. Herndon said. "Traditionally this has been called the music of hicks and lower class people. Even the superstars, especially the superstars, haven't done away with that stigma."

Country musicians, she believes, sing for specific reasons, like the need the break down barriers. She cites as examples black country singer Charley Pride and Johnny Rodriguez, a Mexican-American country singer.

Being accepted as country singers helped these men be accepted in white society, she says.

"The key to country music can be seen in Charley Pride and Johnny Rodriguez," Ms. Herndon said. "Country music is primarily the music of WASP's and always has been."

She plans to invite local musicians as guest lecturers to her classes. Austin is home to many country singers and the center of the recent progressive country music trend.

Who she gets will depend on how much money she can get from the administration, she says.

"A lot of students are interested and the administration seems to be fairly open to the idea," she said. "When people say 'country music,' they say it in a condescending way. I want to try to eliminate the condescension."

Brad Dillman and Farley Granger join Michael Learned, costar of "The Waltons" series, in "Widow," a two-hour movie for NBC-TV.

Crampton Leads Nelson Classic by 3

By MIKE MYERS
DALLAS (UPI) — Lanky Johnny Miller led the field in the $175,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic one day too early.

Miller, on the verge of overhauling Jack Nicklaus as the tour's leading money winner, shot a seven-under par 64 in the Nelson pro-am. But in the opening round Thursday Miller's putter cooled.

"I putted poorly," he said, haggard from the Texas heat and long fairways. "If I had putted like I did yesterday, I would have had a 63 or a 64."

But Miller held a three-under par 68 instead, three strokes off the pace of hometown pro Bruce Crampton.

"There are no good lies in the fairways," Miller said. "I've never seen the fairways this long."

Crampton, who is well familiar with the par 35-36-71, 6,983 yard Preston Trail course, had his opinion.

"The greens need to be cut," he said. "The pins were about normal from what we've seen this year. Now we see the course set up about as tough as they can make it all four days."

Crampton captured the Houston Open last week and turned in a solid five-under par 66 Thursday. He birdied the 425 yard, par four fifth hole with a nine foot putt and then reeled off three straight birdies starting on No. 9. He closed the day with a 10 foot birdie putt on No. 18.

"I've had three solid rounds (he closed Houston at 66 and 69)," the native Australian said. "One advantage of playing here — I get home cooked meals and sleep in my own bed. But if anything it's a little more difficult. You see a lot of friends and they expect to be recognized."

Tex., qualified for the Nelson Monday with a 67.

Lanky Don Bies, Bob E. Smith and Ben Crenshaw shared second place with Hiskey at four under. There were 46 sub par rounds on the opening day and 14 other players were bunched at three under 68 with Miller.

Miller is second in tour earnings this season with $153,889 and can overhaul the tournament missing Jack Nicklaus with the $35,000 championship.

Miller missed six putts under 12 feet and pulled a muscle in the base of his neck along the left shoulder on No. 17.

"I'm not disappointed at the score," the straw blond Californian said.

'If I had putted like I did yesterday, I would have had a 63 or a 64.' — Johnny Miller

Playoffs Set Plano Wildcats Travel To Lufkin Tuesday

District 13-AAAA baseball champion Plano High School will advance to the bi-district step of the Texas High School Baseball Playoffs against Lufkin, the winner of District 14-AAAA.

Lufkin and Plano will play a best of three game series next week to determine the bi-district champion and which team advances to the regional playoffs.

The first seven-inning game of the series will be played at Lufkin High School at 4 p.m. Tuesday, May 13.

The second game of the series will be played at Plano High School's Wildcat Field at 2 p.m. Thursday, May 15.

Should the series be tied at 1-1 after the second game, a third game would be played at 4:30 p.m. Thursday at Plano, immediately following the second game.

Several alternative dates have been established in case of rain on either playing day, however, the bi-district championship must be decided by Saturday, May 17.

Those alternative dates plus ticket information on the game series will be published in the Sunday, May 11 issue of the Plano Daily Star-Courier. Tickets will be sold at Wildcat Field and a fence erected to enforce ticket sales.

Lufkin has a 16-7 record this season while Plano carries a 23-4 record to the playoffs.

In preparation for the playoff, Plano will scrimmage Duncanville, District 7-AAAA winner, today at Wildcat Field at 4:30 p.m. The confrontation is not a game, will not count on either team's record.

"I'd really like to win this tournament. It's good many people are walking around with you and you know they're on your side."

Native Texan Babe Hiskey, who started out on the back side, has his support. Hiskey, seeking his first title since the 1970 Sahara Invitational, rallied for five straight birdies starting on No. 13 with an eight foot putt.

He bogeyed No. 18, missing from 20 feet, but he sank a 15 foot birdie on No. 2. Hiskey, of Galena Park,

Polo at Willow Bend

The first game will be played at 3 p.m. Saturday, May 10 between Willow Bend Dallas Conquistadors. Following at 5 p.m. will be a match between Dallas Lone Oak and Midland.

The winners of the two Saturday games will meet May 13, Tuesday, at 6 p.m.

On Sunday, May 11, Los Rancheros of Kingsville will play Wichita Falls at 3 p.m. The winner of that game will play Wednesday, May 14 against San Antonio at 6 p.m.

The championship game will be played Sunday May 18 at 3 p.m.

All games will be played at Willow Bend Polo and Hunt Club, located on HWY. 544 about two-miles west of the Highway 289 intersection. The public is invited to view the games, admission is $2.50 for adults and children under 12 years are free.

Ashe, Alexander Advance in WCT

By MIKE RABUN
UPI Sports Writer
DALLAS (UPI) — Top-seeded Arthur Ashe overcame a case of first set lethargy Wednesday night to defeat Mark Cox, 1-6, 6-4, 6-4, 7-6, in the last of the quarterfinal matches in the World Championship Tennis tournament.

Ashe, trying to capture the $50,000 first prize for the first time, will meet John Alexander in Friday night's semifinal. Alexander had crushed Roscoe Tanner earlier in the evening, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3.

In Friday night's other semifinal match, Australia's Rod Laver, also hoping to win this event for the first time, will face Bjorn Borg of Sweden. Cox surprised Ashe in the first set with a super serve — he missed only seven first serves in the set — and all around aggressive play.

Ashe, meanwhile, made several errors and became increasingly upset with his own play.

Ashe proceeded to lose his own serve in the second set, but then began to show some aggressiveness of his own and Cox seemed to wilt in the oppressive heat on the court.

After winning the second set, Ashe broke Cox twice early in the third set, but then lost his own serve in the fourth game to set up the most critical game of the match — the sixth of that set. Cox had three break points against Ashe.

Rangers Beat KC 5-3

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Willie Davis, who tied the game with a two-run homer in the seventh, lashed a game-winning single in the ninth Thursday night lifting the Texas Rangers to a 5-3 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Steve Hargan, 3-1, allowed only four hits and went the distance, giving the Rangers their first victory in six tries against Kansas City this season.

Consecutive singles by Cesar Tovar, Len Randle and Davis broke the tie in the ninth and Jeff Burroughs, who had struck out four times, followed with a double, providing the insurance run.

Davis stroked a two-out, tworun homer in the seventh inning tying the score for the Rangers at 3-3. Jim Sundberg led off the inning with a single and scored ahead of Davis.

The Royals scored single runs in the first and second. Mayberry and Hal McRae produced the first run with back-to-back doubles.

Tovar dropped George Brett's leadoff fly in the second for a two-base error and Brett scored on Fred Patek's two-out single.

The Rangers tallied in the second when Mike Hargrove walked, moved to third on a single by Roy Howell and scored by Toby Harrah's single.
